

United States Interagency Council on Homelessness

Preventing and Ending Homelessness in the United States

Richard S. Cho
Policy Director

Richard S. Cho is a Policy Director at the United States Interagency Council on Homelessness. In this role, he facilitates and coordinates the interagency priorities of ending chronic homelessness by 2015, implementing provisions in the Affordable Care Act relevant to ending homelessness, supporting interagency prison and jail re-entry among people experiencing homelessness, and supporting USICH's work with the Department of Housing and Urban Development, the Department of Justice, and the Social Security Administration. Richard joined USICH in February 2013. Prior to joining USICH, Richard spent twelve years working at the Corporation for Supportive Housing, most recently as the Director of Innovations, where he advanced supportive housing innovations for vulnerable populations including homeless populations with complex health needs who were high utilizers of crisis health services and/or correctional settings, families with recurring child welfare involvement, and more. Richard has a Masters in City Planning from Massachusetts Institute of Technology and is currently pursuing a Doctorate in Public Administration at New York University.
